This document describes commercial licensing options for TightVNC Server for Windows, version 2.0 and above. Purchasing a commercial license allows to use TightVNC Server's source code for creating derivative works, embedding it in commercial products and systems, and using it in various other cases when the GNU GPL licensing is not appropriate.

All prices listed in this document are valid until June 30, 2012.

Important! This document refers to the server part of TightVNC only. For information on TightVNC Viewer licensing, please contact GlavSoft LLC. at business@tightvnc.com.

1 Basic Licensing Terms

GlavSoft LLC. (the copyright holder) offers a perpetual, non-exclusive license to the complete source code of the TightVNC Server 2.x for Windows.

The license allows:

- modifying the sources and creating derivative works,
- linking with or embedding into proprietary software,
- re-branding and removing attributions to TightVNC,
- distributing in the compiled binary form.

The license does not allow:

- re-licensing the source code to a third party,
- distributing the source code.

See the Annex at the end of this document for the complete text of the License Agreement.

2 Pricing and Payment Plans

As of current date, the complete perpetual commercial source code license for TightVNC Server 2.x for Windows costs $12,000 (twelve thousand U.S. dollars).

Currently, we offer two payment plans, where the second one increases the total cost by $500 but allow payments in parts. Here is the list of payment plans available:

1. One-time payment: $12,000.
2. Payment in two parts: $6,500 initial payment + $6,000 one year later.

Here is an example illustrating these payment plans assuming the initial payment date was set to January 15, 2012:

Payment Plan	Jan 15, 2012	Jan 15, 2013
1 (one-time)	$12,000 (perpetual license)
2 (two parts)	$6,500 (license expires on Jan 15, 2013)	$6,000 (perpetual license)

As seen from the table above, the license goes perpetual once all payments have been completed. For plan 2, a limited-time license will be granted on the initial payment, with its expiration date set to the next payment date. For this plan, it's possible to obtain a perpetual license at any moment by issuing a payment for the remaining amount.
